Collectors' Update

February, 1999

Reproduction Fugio Cents.

It is with great pleasure that we introduce our latest in a series of Colonial and Early American coin reproductions. The Fugio Cent has been high up on the Gallery Mint request list for quite some time... suggested frequently by enthusiastic copper collectors.

No wonder! The history behind the Fugio Cent is as intriguing as the symbols and messages on the coin.

The Fugio fits in a category somewhere between Colonial and Early U.S. coinage. Simply put, it's probably the earliest coin that was produced privately. This was prior to the establishment of the first U.S. Mint in 1792. Some people refer to this coin as the first U.S. cent.

The design has an almost crystalline quality about it, illustrating the passage of time. Benjamin Franklin's motto "MIND YOUR BUSINESS" had a more literal meaning in 1780 than the modern usage as a sarcastic retort issued at some one violating their good sense (it doesn't belong). Along with the legend, "FUGIO," meaning "I flee," the message is a worthwhile reminder that remains valid across to this day. However, the advice on the coin should have been applied to the business of coinage by the Congress that authorized it.

The original request for Fugio-cent production was awarded to Matthew Ogden, of Rahway Mills, but was underwritten by a recipient James Jarvis. Jarvis, linked the head of the Board of Treasury Col. William Darr, into manipulating the contract over to him, and then managed to gain a controlling interest in the New Jersey mint in order to fulfill the contract. During Jarvis' frequent absences, his father-in-law, Samuel Broomer, continued to produce the lighter weight Connecticut coppers by using uncolored material earmarked for Fugio-cents. Scant more than 17% of the Fugio coins contained tin were actually delivered to the Treasury, most of which were destroyed.

William Darr was eventually arrested and put in debtor's prison. Everyone else was able to flee the country, including Abel Buell, the engraver hired to produce the dies. Although Buell had no part in the scandal, he himself being associated with the incident after an earlier lawsuit with the law that cost him part of his ear along with a forced exit for the United States.

Abel Buell was a talented engraver/engraver who in many ways was ahead of his time as far as his die-making techniques go, and the Fugio cent was no exception.

In order to reproduce this coin using basically the same techniques used by Abel Buell, we had to scratch our heads awhile and really think about how to go about producing the dies. The process introducing usages on the reverse presented the greatest obstacle, but we managed to meet the challenge and produce one of our most attractive reproductions to date.

So here they are. Only $12 each in length, uncolored condition. As always, these are available with the COPY image on the reverse or obverse (standard side). But they won't be available forever. Remember, Time Flies!

$12 each

1999 Hobo Tokens available soon.

Mintage closed on previous issues.

The 1999 Hobo tokens will be released soon. Not only at press time, there will be two varieties offered before the next meeting that will be available through 1999 for $5 each. Mintage has been closed on all previous issues going back to 1994. All our previous tokens are are still available for $5 each until we run out. Past mintage figures are as follows:

Fugio cent production filmed for TV special.

Mike Cusack of Crown Productions has been working on a documentary of U.S. coinage for the past five years. What started out as a coin club program has since developed into a seven hour mini-series.

January 16 (Evening) featured us as Coin World Day here at GMMG. Mr. Cusack filmed all aspects of producing the Fugio Cent reproductions to illustrate what it might have been like over two hundred years ago.

As Chapters and The Cent, the GMMG coinage crew donned Colonial style clothing and demonstrated the steps of creating the piece.

There is an area available where this documentary will air, but more likely to be one of the educational channels in the future. The film hopes to provide a view of history as seen through the money made and traded produced in the Mint.

New office manager at GMM

We regret to say farewell to Carly Charginham, who has decided to move back to her home town in Louisiana. Carly will be missed by us and the many friends she has grown to know over the three years she has been with GMMG. She is succeeded by Penny Cornill, an accountant from Bonita Springs. Thank you, Carly, for your years of dedicated and friendly service.

Poll results in:

"If it works, don't fix it."

In our last newsletter we asked our pastured members opinions regarding new issues and policies we've been considering. As approximately 40 who responded, in the past on a better idea of how you feel about these possible additions and changes.

Question #1 concerning recognition of GMMG replicas, only 22 people expressed an interest, most of which would not have them graded. 10% grant the "honors design".

The question concerning the proposed Educational Series brought 246 votes in favor. 41 votes that were very opposed to idea, while most people (217) stating they didn't care one way or the other. Many remarks to the effect that "this is a good idea but I wouldn't be interested". Based on the very passionate arguments that some people had concerning as of trying to overproduce like this. "I think" we have decided to put this project on hold, and stick closer to our original concept.

The question regarding the new security edge was split right down the middle with 164 votes in favor of the more security step, with 164 votes that were opposed. 168 people indicated they could live without, but with we could be more subtle.

When we get the time, we will make new edge dies that have a tactile security device.

On the question of American reproductions, 29 people expressed a great interest, and came up with a number of suggestions of what sorts to reproduce. 226 people expressed a moderate interest, while 247 saying they are not interested in American coins or reproductions of them.

We will go ahead with some-kind historical points as the year theme, as we would like to expand our base of interest beyond American coin reproductions. Also, in order to complete the picture of coin-making technology in our museum, it is needed to illustrate the very rudimentary and most primitive methods of coin manufacture.

Basically, we are not changing anything, and will try to stick to the basic concept that our patrons have enjoyed since we founded in 1993.

Again, we appreciate those who took the time to respond, and as always, we encourage you to drop us a line or call to discuss any ideas or opinions that you might have.

No news on dollar design.

Many people have been asking us about our involvement in the design of the new U.S. Dollar coin. We are happy to say that we can't say anything, and have been on pins and needles awaiting the final selection to be made by the Secretary of the Treasury, Robert Rubin.

Display boxes for 1796 sets on the way...again

Many people that ordered the vintage display boxes will be happy to learn the boxes are again in production. We have experienced a great deal of difficulty trying to produce an accurate, high quality display box, but the first results came up short in some ways. The second manufacturer to produce these for us delivered over 50 boxes that were damaged due to improperly mounted hinges, missing utility flaps.

Many people have returned these boxes for replacement and have been patiently awaiting the new boxes. The manufacturer has informed us that they are out of business and are unable to replace the damaged boxes.

We are happy to announce we have finally re-engineered these boxes in a way that will make for a much more accurate system. The new boxes will be constructed of maple, white, white finish frame wood that will hold the top panel snug. Along with a high quality hinge and metal base catch, we believe these new boxes will be accurate and problem free.

This has just been worked out, so we do not have a photo of the new boxes and cannot give a delivery date as of yet, but we cannot wait to show what we can do to satisfy our collectors who have been patiently awaiting these displays.

What's next?

This is one of the most frequently asked questions we have from our patrons who call. Our recent push resulted in strong support for the pattern issue of 1793 which include the silver center piece design, half dollar, the Birch coin, and a quarter dollar designed by Joseph Wright. We will reproduce all these pieces eventually but are in some other pieces that have been requested such as the British Broadmoor that will be offered in the next mailing.

The 1799 coin has also been requested frequently. It is appropriate that we reproduce this rare date piece on the 200th anniversary of its original release, so it will be offered later this year.

Also frequently requested are the 1864 dollar 1913 Liberty Head nickel, gold $4 dollar coin, the 1794 "tanned cowhide" coin, Cabinet dollar, and all the Flowing Hair silver coins.

Support has also been strong for colored coins such as the Massachusetts shillings, and we intend to reproduce them using an accurate type of wire matted that will require specially made rubber press and the roller press. That's a pretty full plate for now, but we always open to hearing your ideas for future reproductions, medals, and the like.

Spring season is target for start of Museum construction

After adjusting our original and somewhat ambitious plans for our permanent museum, we are now looking with great anticipation for construction on the first wing of the facility sometime this spring.

By doing so, along with the second floor, we can have a considerable room by going to a less expensive means of construction without sacrificing exhibit space. The first wing will house our present coin machine shop, engraving shop, office, and gift shop along with a smaller retail or business meeting which will eventually be expanded and moved into the current exhibit room.

Your continued support is always appreciated.

Gallery Mint goes online

We've finally decided to join the twentieth century with some addition of one of those nifty older internet computers. Customers can now E-mail us with their questions and comments, and we give a swift back. E-mail, e-mail was handled on a complicated forwarding system through our web site in Colorado Springs, but now, just contact us direct at any of these addresses,

Sacagawea is subject for Portland exhibitors' medal

For the past three years, we have been producing and donating these large portrait medals that are requested by people who have set up exhibits at the annual convention of the American Numismatic Association.

The finished medals will be distributed to exhibitors later this year. Our sponsor, Ellen Lander, designed and engraved the latest original that she quickly worked to be matted and sent to printer with the legend "Portland, Oregon" and dated 1998. As our past years medals that represent will show the ANA's "history of knowledge" and feature an extremely engraving design.

Mint state replicas of some of the most desirable and historic of U.S. coins.

Treat yourself and your family to a set.

These reproductions but attractive replicas help to provide a window to the past as they illustrate what the original coins might have looked like when they were first struck over two hundred years ago.

Numismatists and experienced numismatists alike find joy in owning these beautiful, most state reproductions of the scarce and most desirable of U.S. coins.

Although in the past many of the limited edition replicas from Gallery Mint Museum have appreciated in value, that is not the reason why most people collect GMM products, and in fact it may change the best reason to collect anything.

Many people appreciate coins as miniature works of art, and find Gallery Mint replicas to be an affordable and attractive substitute for owning the expensive originals. But even the most experienced collectors find joy in supplementing their collections with these bright, undervalued and proof reproductions.

Gallery Mint replicas will not only add to your collecting enjoyment, but also provide an educational tool that will enhance your family's appreciation and understanding of their American heritage for generations to come.

Experienced numismatists find there to be a real supplemental to their prestigious collections. Type collectors find there to be an affordable and achievable alternative to owning the original coins. But we truly hope we can also introduce the fascinating hobby of coin collecting to a new audience by making available reproductions of rare, historic coins they may otherwise never be exposed to. We hope the many new collectors introduced to numismatics through Gallery

Mint products will continue their interest in coins by attending coin shows, joining local coin clubs, and meeting other collectors who share numismatic interests.

When you purchase replicas from Gallery Mint Museum, you are not only getting the finest reproductions available today, but also helping to preserve the historic engraving and cutting techniques that were used to create the originals.

As a piece of Gallery Mint, you will receive our journal, the Gallery Mint Report, along with periodical Collector's Updates that will keep you informed on new releases and our ongoing numismatic projects.

All 14 pieces of the 1796 set are available individually, or as a complete set in an attractive walnut display box.

Currently we are offering the entire 14-piece set of copper and silver 1796 replicas for only $180 plus shipping. The complete 14-piece set includes a gold reproduction for 1790 plus shipping. Walnut display boxes are sold separately at $75 each. Prices of individual pieces are listed on the order form in this advertisement.
